

How Interpretation Makes International Law

On Semantic Change and Normative Twists

INGO VENZKE

OXFORD
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Contents

Table of Cases	xvii
List of Abbreviations	xxiii
I. In the Beginning was the Deed	1
Problématique	2
Agenda	10
Programme	14
II. The Practice of Interpretation: A Theoretical Perspective	16
A. Lawmaking in communicative practice	18
1. On the sources of international law	19
2. Sovereignty, sources, and semantic change	27
3. From sources to communicative practice	29
B. Semantic struggles in the practice of legal interpretation	37
1. Practice between agency and structure	38
2. On the form and substance of legal interpretation	46
3. Power and authority in semantic struggles	57
C. Actors in the practice of interpretation	64
1. Private norm entrepreneurs	65
2. The disaggregated state	67
3. International institutions: Bureaucracies and judicial bodies	69
III. UNHCR and the Making of Refugee Law	72
A. International bureaucracies as actors in legal discourse	76
1. Delegation from principals to agents	77
2. The authority of international bureaucracies	82
B. The expansion of UNHCR's Statute	87
1. Expectations and concerns	90
2. International protection and humble beginnings	95
3. Material assistance, good offices, and displaced persons	98
4. Humanitarian aid and voluntary repatriation	104
C. UNHCR and the meaning of the Convention	109
1. UNHCR's role in developing the Convention	110
2. Semantic change at work: Shifting elements in the meaning of 'refugee'	122
D. Conclusions: Change and contexts	130

IV. Adjudication in the GATT/WTO: Making General Exceptions in Trade Law	135
A. International adjudicators as actors in legal discourse	139
1. Historiography: Longing for international adjudication	140
2. Judicial decisions and precedents	144
3. The GATT/WTO context	147
B. Article XX in the era of the GATT	150
1. General exceptions: A general prologue	150
2. The creation of a high threshold	157
3. A territorial limitation?	163
C. Article XX in the era of the WTO	167
1. Institutional changes and the working of precedents	167
2. A new beginning with the Appellate Body	172
3. Proportionality, interpretation, and legitimacy	180
D. Conclusions: Adjudication, precedents, and legitimacy	190
V. Creative Interpretations: Normative Twists	196
A. The bittersweet taste of justice in legal discourse	198
1. Narratives of progress and advents of justice	200
2. Scepticism and realism	207
3. The practice of interpretation and communicative action	214
B. The centrality of law: Dissonances and developments in legal doctrine	223
1. The appeal and futility of soft law	225
2. Intertemporal law and subsequent practice: shortening the leash?	230
3. Global administrative law and international public authority	240
C. Evasive foundations: Semantic authority in a normative pluriverse	245
1. Principles of democracy and ultimate authority	248
2. Architectural renovation and institutional design	252
3. Attitudes and interpretation at critical junctures	256
VI. Epilogue: In the End there is Eternity	262
Bibliography	266
Index	313